Biographical Note

Robert Connell Baldrige, son of H. Malcolm and Regina Baldrige, was born in Omaha, Nebraska on November 9, 1924. Robert Baldrige was the middle child with one older brother, Malcolm and a younger sister, Letitia. His family remained in Omaha for his entire childhood.

Baldrige was born into a military family. His father was a member of the Yale ROTC and served in both World War I and World War II, first in the artillery in France and later as an Air Force Colonel in Italy. Baldrige's namesake, one of his mother's brothers, Robert Connell died of pneumonia in World War I. Two of Regina Baldrige's other brothers, Herbert and James also served in the armed forces.

Baldrige attended Omaha Central High School, participating in the JROTC, before transferring to Hotchkiss Prep School. While a student at Yale, he did one year of Basic ROTC, enlisting in the Enlisted Reserve Corps at Fort Bragg NC, in the summer of 1943.

During World War II, he served over two years in Europe with the 34th Field Artillery Battalion within the 9th Infantry Division. He joined the 9th in England after skipping ASTP (Army Specialized Training Program). Baldrige participated in the battle of Normandy and of the Bulge as the 34th was part of the First Army. He received the Bronze Star and left military service as a 2nd Lieutenant.

After the war, he graduated from Yale in 1948 with a B.A. Baldrige's professional career developed around the textile industry in New York City. He was member of the 9th Infantry Division Association, director of the National Order of Battlefield Commissions, and trustee of the Village of Lawrence NY. He is the author of Victory road (1995), as well as several articles and papers presented at conferences.

Robert C. Baldrige died on February 19, 2005.
