Biographical Note

Lt. Commander James W. Wengert, M.D was born on May 22, 1934 in Grand Island, NE. He grew up in Omaha, NE. When he was older, Wengert went to school to become a doctor, the third generation in his family to do so.

In 1960, Dr. Wengert became a Flight Surgeon with the U.S. Navy. From 1962-1964 he served on board the aircraft carrier USS Randolph. He served as Lieutenant Commander until 1967. Following his service in the military, Dr. Wengert trained at the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute from 1967-1970. In 1972 he began teaching and served as a psychiatrist at the VA Hospital in Omaha. He remained there until his retirement in 1995.

In addition to his own medical profession, Dr. Wengert was a dedicated historian of military medicine and the American frontier. Whether discussing the ancient battlefields of Greece or the Vietnam Military Medics., Dr. Wengert had a deep knowledge of military medicine throughout history. Later in life, he combined his two interests by reading and writing about General George Custer. In 2007, he published an article (posthumously) for the Journal of the West entitled "Henry Rinaldo Porter: A Surgeon's Account of Custer's Last Stand." Dr. Wengert published two other works on medical history in the American West: A Frontier Army Christmas and Custer Despatches: The Words of the New York Herald Correspondents in the Little Big Horn Campaign of 1876, as well as a book entitled The Military Ambulances. His unpublished research, collected over the past two decades (and included in this collection) was intended to expand the scope of this last volume.

Not content to just read and write about military medicine, Dr. Wenger was also an avid collector of military medical toys. In an obituary notice that appeared in Old Toy Solder: The Journal for Collectors, two friends wrote of Dr. James "Doc" Wengert,

Over 35 years of collecting, Doc joyously developed our hobby's definitive collection of military medical toys. He could spot a red cross on a made-in-Japan tin bus across a crowded flea market; no paint variation or casting difference in a figure was too subtle for Doc's eye. Where others found a piece or two, Doc came home with a bag full of weird and wonderful figures and ambulances by the dozen; "moving the wounded" was Doc's special passion.

Before his retirement in 1995, Dr. Wengert served as Assistant Chief of Psychiatry for the Veterans Administration in Omaha, and as a trustee for the Nebraska State Historical Society.

Dr. Wengert died unexpectedly in his sleep on May 23, 2006. He had just turned seventy-two. His wife Helen still lives in Omaha, NE.

Scope and Content of the Collection

The collection contains research material pertaining to the history of military medicine and transportation, the majority of which includes personal research clippings and notes. Separate from the collection are 287 books, a variety of rare books and magazines.

Series One

This series contains four boxes of subject files, including notes, article clippings, publications and photographs. The files pertain to specific wars, time periods and geographical locations.

Series Two

This series contains separated research material originally contained within three-ring binders. This series include a collection of Annual Reports of the Secretary of War, specifically those of the Surgeon General and Quartermaster General, as well as additional articles relating to the history of military medicine.

Series Three and Four

These series contains additional separated research material. Series Three includes loose articles, clippings and publications.

Series Four

This series includes hand-written notes, photographs, articles, various ephemera, and correspondence. Of particular interest in this series is an unknown manuscript containing parts of Chapter 4 through Chapter 10 (pp. 149-358). It is believed to be a section from Dr. Wengert's book The Military Ambulance (1981).

Series Five

This series contains a collection of images, mostly photographs and 35mm slides. These include illustrations and photographs of early Military Ambulances and Motor Ambulances. The slides pertain to the history of military medical transportation.

Arrangement

The Series categories for this collection were arranged by PMML staff. Series One (contained in six boxes) remains in its original, seemingly random, order; the subject labels are those given by Dr. Wengert.

Series Two and Five were transferred from large binders into archival folders. Series Two consists of research material from three three-ring binders, originally stored separately from the Subject Files of Series One. Series Five consists of photographs and 35mm slides originally stored in three three-ring binders. The images remain in their original plastic sheets.

Series Three and Four came with no discernable arrangement and have been rearranged in a more efficient working order by PMML staff.

The collection is contained within eight archival boxes.
